32. Casey Coddling is Superintendent of the Oregon State Police.

33. The Superintendent of the Oregon State Police is the executive and administrative head of the Oregon State Police.

34. As described in ORS 181A.080, the Oregon State Police are charged with the enforcement of all criminal laws in Oregon.

35. Oregon voters passed Ballot Measure 114 (“Measure 114”) on November 8, 2022.

36. Measure 114 was scheduled to take effect on December 8, 2022.

37. The Oregon State Police (“OSP”) has adopted administrative rules that govern some procedures for issuing permits to purchase. OAR 257-010-0065(1)-(6).

38. OSP has prepared an application for permits to purchase.

39. OSP is prepared today to receive completed applications and fingerprint cards collected by permit agents via fax or United States Mail.

40. Some permit agents have access to LiveScan electronic fingerprint machines that permit the electronic transfer of fingerprints.

41. OSP estimates it will take 30 business days for the vendor to set up the LiveScan fingerprint system.

42. The FBI has informed OSP that it will not perform fingerprint-based criminal background checks for permit applicants based on its determination that Ballot Measure 114 does not meet the requirements of Pub. L. 92-544.

43. The Oregon State Sheriffs Association (“OSSA”) and Oregon Association of Chiefs of Police (“OACP”) have created working groups that address the implementation of Measure 114. The workgroups have made recommendations about the process for permit agents to issue permits and certify in-person demonstration instructors.

44. A firearm magazine is a device attached or attachable to a firearm that stores ammunition.

45. A firearm magazine is a device that feeds ammunition into firearms.

46. Firearm magazines can either be detachable or fixed.

47. A detachable magazine can be loaded or unloaded while detached from a firearm and readily inserted in a firearm.

48. A fixed magazine is contained in or permanently attached to a firearm in such a manner that the device cannot be removed without disassembly of the firearm action.

49. Magazines that hold more than 10 rounds of ammunition are owned and possessed by millions of Americans.

50. Americans sometimes use magazines capable of holding more than 10 rounds for lawful purposes.

51. Some semiautomatic pistols currently on the market today in some states come standard with detachable magazines capable of holding more than 10 rounds of ammunition.

52. Some semiautomatic rifles currently on the market today in some states come standard with detachable magazines capable of holding more than 10 rounds of ammunition.

53. The Sig Sauer P365, Smith & Wesson M&P92, and Smith & Wesson M&P AR15 are capable of using a magazine with more than 10 rounds of ammunition.

54. The Sig Sauer P365, Smith & Wesson M&P92, and Smith & Wesson M&P AR15 are capable of using a magazine with 10 or fewer rounds.

55. Some people sometimes carry firearms equipped with magazines to defend themselves.

56. The federal government did not regulate the firing capacity of semi-automatic firearms until 1994.

57. The federal government ceased regulating the firing capacity of semi-automatic firearms after 2004.

58. Most gun owners in the Eighteenth Century owned single-shot, muzzle loading firearms, such as muskets.

59. The Girardoni air rifle, developed around 1779, had a 22-round capacity.

60. Samuel Colt patented a revolver in 1836.

61. During the mid-19th century, advances in technology transformed ammunition from powder and ball (bullet) inserted loose or in paper cartridges, to metallic cartridges that contained primer, powder, and bullet.

62. The Henry rifle came onto the U.S. market in 1860.

63. The Henry rifle could fire sixteen shots without reloading.

64. In 1896, Mauser developed a semi-automatic, recoil-operated pistol.

65. Murders committed by individuals wielding firearms occurred in the United States in the 19th century.

66. Episodes in which multiple individuals were killed by people wielding firearms occurred in the U.S. in the 19th century.

67. The magazines prohibited from sale under Measure 114 have some monetary value on the open market.

68. The state has not issued guidance on what it means to “[p]ermanently alter” a magazine “so that it is not capable, upon alteration in the future, of accepting more than 10 rounds of ammunition.”

69. All ten of the highest-selling pistols in the U.S. in 2022 can function with magazines with a maximum capacity of 10 or fewer rounds.

70. Most major firearm manufacturers offer models that come standard with a magazine with a maximum capacity of 10 rounds or fewer.

71. Most major firearm manufacturers already make models that are compliant with laws in other states that also prohibit the sale of magazines with more than 10 rounds (e.g., California).
